Are They Starving?

It was published in this city recently that there were hundreds of peoples in Cameron county slowly starving to death and on yesterday a petition was being circulated appealing to the people of the state for aid. As we were not fully acquainted with all the facts we took the pains to inquire of a few of our leading citizens as to the truth of the matter and was told that no such destitution exists. We are also told that all of the poor and needy are well provided for by the Ladies Charitable Aid Society, the county commissioners and city council, and that there is no one starving in the town or county. We have also been reliably informed that it is untrue that there is a single instance in the county where any one is starving to death and if such should be the case it is their fault, for they only have to let their wants be known and they will be quickly supplied. We hope this matter has been a little overdrawn, as it must be, for we cannot believe our good, kind hearted citizens would allow such a thing to go on in their midst without doing something towards alleviating the suffering of our poor, unfortunate people.

The Homestead Affair.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 23.—At 1:55 p. m. H. C. Frick was shot by a man who came into his office and without warning fired upon him. He is able to talk. The man has been arrested.

There are four wounds—one in the neck, two in the back and the fourth in the side.

The man had a knife, and as only three shots were fired it is supposed that the fourth wound, that in the side, is from the knife.

Dr. Litchfield is now making an examination and says he can not tell whether the wounds will result fatally. Frick's condition, however, is regarded as very serious.

He would be assassin had frequently been in Frick's office and was admitted to day without question.

Secretary Leishman rushed in and grabbed the man, who turned on Leishman but was overpowered.

Great excitement prevails, and a large crowd surround the building in which the Carnegie offices are located. The man's name is Alexander Berkman. He is a printer, 21 years of age, and lives in this city. He is a Russian Jew and supposed to be an anarchist.

David Fortney, the elevator boy says he has been hanging around the building for the past 3 or 4 days, and he has carried him up to Frick's room a number of times.

Berkman was seen at the central station shortly after the shooting and seemed to be entirely composed. When asked what reason he had for the assault he replied: "You know what reason I had."

The office of Leishman, a business partner, adjoins Frick's, and the two were holding a private conference in the latter's room, when a few minutes before two o'clock Berkman hastily pushed open the swinging gate on the railing between the public portion and the enclosure. The man sprang within about five feet of Frick and quickly drawing a revolver-pulled the trigger. The first cartridge did not explode, but the second shot entered the back of Frick's neck and glancing downward passed to the outside in the armpit. The assailant fired again. The ball entered the muscle on the left side of the neck and passed around to a lodgement under the ear, where it was later reached by a probe.

POINT ISABEL, July 25, '92.
We are having delightful weather.

United States Steamer "Arbutus," of the light house department with superintendent of construction and repairs on board, arrived off Brazos yesterday at noon. The superintendent visited Point Isabel and took photographic views of the light house premises here and returned on board the ship and sailed up the coast last evening.

About one hundred excursionists visited the Point yesterday from your city and returned on the evening train.

County clerk Webb returned to Brownsville yesterday with his family, after having spent ten days very pleasantly, enjoying all luxuries of the season. His pleasure was not quite complete though on account of not being successful on his fishing excursions. The fish would not patronize his hook.

Only a few of the picnickers put in an appearance yesterday, they being too much exhausted from the pleasure of continued dancing for nearly two days and one night.

Capt. Cummings deserves great praise for the excellent manner in which he conducted the picnic, and as he always does when he undertakes amusements for others, made a grand success of it.

Capt. Jno. Flynn also did his best to make all of us enjoy ourselves while we were at his station from Tuesday evening until Saturday afternoon.

Friday night, a little after midnight, after nearly all had retired, a large, "airy," puffed up man appeared on the premises. Where he came from I could not tell. He seemed to be well acquainted with some of the people here too.

After keeping silent for some minutes he made a break for up stairs. Soon there was considerable screaming among the girls and he had to take to his heels. Some claimed it was Capt. Flynn in his rubber bathing suit, others said it was Capt. Cummings. Many had an idea it was some one else we won't mention his name. As any rate he caused a great deal of laughter. Who we it was they very glad to get out of the suit as it was too "embracing" for comfort. The families present were those of Mrs. Putegnat, Parker, Scanlan, Webb, Schriber Kennedy, Rentfro Linton, Lipecombe, Clearwater Mrs. Wildman, with Mr. Russell's children. The young ladies there were the Misses More, Webb, Kowalski, Egly, Garnier Burnback Dalzell, Daughterty and Kenedy. The gentlemen were Messrs. Maris, Scanlan, Putegnat, Dalzell, Egan, Linton, Rentfro, Sauder, Combe, Miller, Cowen, Thomhan, Dreyfuss, and the two favorites, Captains Cummings and Flynn. Eatables of all kinds were in abundance and every one came home well pleased and prizes for Capt. Cummings, which he will deserve. The occasion will long be remembered by those who participated. Adios.

A tornado at Springfield, Ohio, laid the residence portion of the town in waist with some loss of life.
